INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL OF NURSES REGULATION & CREDENTIALING SUMMIT

WORKING IN COMPLEX AND UNCERTAIN TIMES

In a world of uncertainty related to increased nursing workforce mobility, technological advances and geopolitical challenges, regulatory and credentialing bodies are in the midst of a forced transformation.

Join us for this first ever Summit bringing together experts from a variety of fields to address the changes taking place around the world and discuss major topics facing regulatory and credentialing community.

Program Objectives:

Assist in the development of ICN's regulation and credentialing strategy

Explore the interface between nursing regulatory bodies and nursing professional organizations' role in credentialing nurses and what is its role in the protection of the public

Understand the emerging issues facing regulators from robotics to social media, along with the legalization of previously banned substances

Prepare the regulatory and credentialing community for an increasing globalized and uncertain environment

Identify potential threats and opportunities to enhance the procedures and methods used by regulatory and credentialing bodies to protect the public

Describe methods that can be employed by regulatory and credentialing authorities to meet the digital needs of today and tomorrow

Explain how harmonization across geographical boundaries will reduce bureaucracies while enhancing applicant experience and reinforce public protection

November 20-21, 2017 | Estoril, Portugal
